

Do You Have Your Sweetheart's Face Photographed on Your Finger Nails? Do You Lap Your Drink Like a Cat or Spoil Your Mouth on a Cup? Do You Try to Make Your Feet Bigger Than They Really Are? Do You Intend to Wear an Old Japanese War Helmet for Your Head's Health?

Do You Have Your Sweetheart's Face Photographed on Your Finger Nails?

Why should you hide the face of your sweetheart in a lock, or in the case of your chateau watch, when you can pay him the compliment of wearing it boldly photographed on one or all of your finger nails?

This is the idea of a Paris photographer, and it has started a pretty fad that is spreading all over Europe. You don't need to fear embarrassing consequences resulting from a possible change of sweethearts, for, while these finger-nail photographs ordinarily will last for two or three months, any competent manicure can erase them at a sitting.

Finger-nail photography is not a tedious operation. The nail is first sensitized with chemicals which hold the film of the tiny negative. This once fixed, the artist-photographer "works up" the transferred image until it appears like a delicate etching with a border and background of pink.

As there are some thirty tints used in the making of carbon prints, you can take your choice. A very thin coat of transparent varnish to preserve the image completes the operation. The effect is like transferring a portrait to a bit of fine china, only no "firing" is necessary. The photograph being necessarily so small, only the closest inspection by an outsider will reveal the original, and, therefore, you cannot be accused of "wearing your heart on your sleeve."

Of course, as the nail grows and is trimmed at the end in manicuring it, the photograph upon it will gradually be sacrificed, bit by bit. When it thus begins to disappear, that is the time to have it removed by energetic use of the polisher—when the photographer can be visited for a renewal of the print. The usual care of the finger nails will not obliterate these photographs when they are carefully "worked up."

It is not likely that this newest of fads will last long. It is better, though, than that other feminine fad of only a little while ago when women actually had the pictures of their very dear friends tattooed upon their arms or shoulders. The tattoo fad was particularly virulent for a time, especially in Paris—where most of these oddities start.

The fad may be amusing for a little while—but it's not likely to last, fortunately.

Ex-King Manuel's Face on Gaby's Finger Nail.

Do You Lap Your Drink Like a Cat or Spoil Your Mouth on a Cup?

The Mouth Distortion in Cup Drinking.

The "Natural" Way of Drinking.

If you have ever seen a cat lapping milk from a saucer the refined delicacy of the operation probably has challenged your admiration, especially in contrast with the prettiest of girls with the rim of a glass or a cup in her mouth, taking her drink that way at the expense of an abominable distortion of the lips.

Well, now comes a fashionable doctor in Europe who declares that the human way of drinking is responsible for many of the ugly mouths that disfigure middle-aged faces. And his remedial for that disfigurement is habitual lapping of your drink as a cat does.

This doctor alleges that originally human beings lapped their drink, mostly from the surface of springs and running streams. The use of drinking cups, he says, is one of the great mistakes of civilization.

Do You Try to Make Your Feet Bigger Than They Really Are?

These Are the Newest Feminine Fancies

150 LBS.

150 LBS.

This Foot Has Trouble Carrying This Weight.

While This Foot Has None.

Are you aware that you cannot have little feet and beautiful feet at one and the same time? Aren't you tired of crowding your No. 4 feet into No. 3 shoes, thereby gathering unbecoming corns and bunions, much suffering and general ill health? And if it were the fashion, wouldn't you gladly wear shoes two or three sizes larger, thereby gaining feet much bigger and really beautiful?

Rejoice, then, for the Baroness Moha, of Munich, Germany, a distinguished and beautiful woman, has set the example. More. She has founded the fashionable Bavarian "Big Foot Society," whose membership already numbers thousands of "smart women," all of whom are wearing big shoes in order to have beautiful, big feet.

Do You Intend to Wear an Old Japanese War Helmet for Your Head's Health?

An amiable compromise between hygiene and fashion in Paris has brought forth the Japanese helmet hat. If you wear this latest creation in the way of headgear it will be for two reasons: the design is striking and becoming, and the construction is calculated to promote comfort and health.

The thoughtful designer of the Japanese helmet hat was inspired by observation of the lightness and grace of the very ancient original, which is of lacquered wood, perfectly moulded to the head, thoroughly ventilated and of almost feather lightness. The new hat, which follows the helmet's lines closely and is made of the same material, retains also the curved pieces which extend down over the ears to the shoulders.

In the original helmet these side pieces served to armor the neck against sword strokes, the lacquered material, while extremely light, being exceedingly tough. In the hat they are retained both for grace and as a counterbalance, bringing the centre of gravity down to the wearer's brow, and thus preserving the structure's equilibrium without the use of hatpins.

Beauty Secrets of Beautiful Women

Deep Breathing Lessons From Miss Zoe Barnett

(By Lillian Lauffer.)

"HAVE you ever watched a fish breathe?" asked dark-eyed Zoe Barnett, of Low Field's "All Aboard" company, who was seen in El Paso two years ago in "The Red Rose." "No, I'm not bringing the coils of comeliness into this interview; I am about to tell you the greatest beauty secret I know. A fish breathes visibly—you can see its little sides expand and contract as it breathes deeply and all over its body. But most women breathe either in the top of their lungs or expand their diaphragm as much as their stiff corsets will let them. Now I wear corsets of 'Grecian' style—no webbing, and those corsets breathe with me."

We were sitting in Miss Barnett's own cool shadowed room.

How to Breathe.

"Now I will give you a little exhibition of proper breathing, and then you would probably like a little sermon on just what it does for you," went on Miss Barnett, making the interviewer's lot an easy one, indeed.

"Please put your hands here on my ribs and feel them press out and out till they are fully expanded by my full lungs and till my chest is pushed way up by those same lungs, pushed all the hollows in throat and neck are padded out and filled by the splendid clear air I am drawing up from my diaphragm. That is deep breathing."

"Deep breathing helps you have a figure that is slender yet round. It banishes hollows and unbalanced bones and it helps the skin throw off impurities and keep white and fine of texture. It lets you have a clear, alert, and plenty of nerve power and strength back of it. Try it at an open window 20 times each morning—inhale your 20 to 25 to 30-breaths deeply whenever you are outdoors—and finally grow into the habit of breathing deeply all the time."

Curious Bodily Hiss.

"Do you know, when I feel a little headache starting or find an attack of indigestion imminent, I rush to the open window and breathe deeper and deeper until that internal application of fresh air clears my system and wards off the threatened attack."

"Do you and what your deep breathing does by some sensible dietary laws?" I asked.

"Oh, yes, the food simply is first aid to the air supply," said Zoe, who adds so much wholesome sanity to the more sensational claims of her delightful personality. "I eat only two meals a day. I find that I can sing over a sore throat—when an ulcerated one—but my voice will not make music over an overworked and protesting stomach. Over eating seems to be a more general complaint than starvation in our land of too plenty."

Choosing Costumes.

"And to your theory of unlimited fresh air and limited food supply you add a bit of originality in choosing costumes, don't you?"

"A good bit," was the answer. "I found putting myself into clothes that some one else has designed for me. I don't feel quite free to be myself unless everything about me is me and expresses me. I like my clothes to be one form of my self-expression, and I think it is worth while bringing earnest study to the understanding of your own type. But if a woman lacks that great essential taste, she can do one great thing toward being well dressed—she can attend to the details of her costume. Never wear a bedraggled petticoat or go about in run down heels, for if every little detail is neat and in good taste, even the simplest costume looks attractive and dainty."

And in the fine glow of an independent spirit that darts beneath because of practice, Miss Barnett concluded: "Work hard at deep breathing and at deep feeling and thinking and trying, and then you'll be a success at being a woman and a worker, and a beauty too, maybe."

Beauty Secrets of Beautiful Women

Deep Breathing Lessons From Miss Zoe Barnett

(By Lillian Lauffer.)

"HAVE you ever watched a fish breathe?" asked dark-eyed Zoe Barnett, of Low Field's "All Aboard" company, who was seen in El Paso two years ago in "The Red Rose." "No, I'm not bringing the coils of comeliness into this interview; I am about to tell you the greatest beauty secret I know. A fish breathes visibly—you can see its little sides expand and contract as it breathes deeply and all over its body. But most women breathe either in the top of their lungs or expand their diaphragm as much as their stiff corsets will let them. Now I wear corsets of 'Grecian' style—no webbing, and those corsets breathe with me."

We were sitting in Miss Barnett's own cool shadowed room.

How to Breathe.

"Now I will give you a little exhibition of proper breathing, and then you would probably like a little sermon on just what it does for you," went on Miss Barnett, making the interviewer's lot an easy one, indeed.

"Please put your hands here on my ribs and feel them press out and out till they are fully expanded by my full lungs and till my chest is pushed way up by those same lungs, pushed all the hollows in throat and neck are padded out and filled by the splendid clear air I am drawing up from my diaphragm. That is deep breathing."

"Deep breathing helps you have a figure that is slender yet round. It banishes hollows and unbalanced bones and it helps the skin throw off impurities and keep white and fine of texture. It lets you have a clear, alert, and plenty of nerve power and strength back of it. Try it at an open window 20 times each morning—inhale your 20 to 25 to 30-breaths deeply whenever you are outdoors—and finally grow into the habit of breathing deeply all the time."

Curious Bodily Hiss.

"Do you know, when I feel a little headache starting or find an attack of indigestion imminent, I rush to the open window and breathe deeper and deeper until that internal application of fresh air clears my system and wards off the threatened attack."

"Do you and what your deep breathing does by some sensible dietary laws?" I asked.

"Oh, yes, the food simply is first aid to the air supply," said Zoe, who adds so much wholesome sanity to the more sensational claims of her delightful personality. "I eat only two meals a day. I find that I can sing over a sore throat—when an ulcerated one—but my voice will not make music over an overworked and protesting stomach. Over eating seems to be a more general complaint than starvation in our land of too plenty."

Choosing Costumes.

"And to your theory of unlimited fresh air and limited food supply you add a bit of originality in choosing costumes, don't you?"

"A good bit," was the answer. "I found putting myself into clothes that some one else has designed for me. I don't feel quite free to be myself unless everything about me is me and expresses me. I like my clothes to be one form of my self-expression, and I think it is worth while bringing earnest study to the understanding of your own type. But if a woman lacks that great essential taste, she can do one great thing toward being well dressed—she can attend to the details of her costume. Never wear a bedraggled petticoat or go about in run down heels, for if every little detail is neat and in good taste, even the simplest costume looks attractive and dainty."

And in the fine glow of an independent spirit that darts beneath because of practice, Miss Barnett concluded: "Work hard at deep breathing and at deep feeling and thinking and trying, and then you'll be a success at being a woman and a worker, and a beauty too, maybe."

SCHUMANN-HEINK

DEFIES THE HEAT

Divas, Whose Voice Has Made a Million Enthusiasts Over the West and Her Family.

Summer suns have no terrors for Schumann-Heink, the great German-American diva. For 45 minutes she stood on the platform of the union station in El Paso, with the mercury flirting with the 100 mark, the perspiration trickling down her wholesome German face and talked of the wonderful west her adopted America, and the fun of being a mother, and a grandmother.

Madam Schumann-Heink arrived on the Golden State limited and took on that vehicle of progress. While she was here she talked about exactly 57 different subjects, all of them with an enthusiasm about the west and especially her adopted home in San Diego; she talked about her husband, her children, her friends, her travels, her singing, which brought her the means for making so many people happy; about her own family and about the west and country of her adoption, which she calls home.

Madam Schumann-Heink is a German housewife, and is true to type. She cares nothing for the frills of society. She says so herself. But she is a housewife and can and does do her own washing when the occasion demands. But most of all, she is a mother and a grandmother, and her love of her children and her grandchildren is a part of her life.

Is Proud of Her Children.

"Sen Hans he is such a fine lad and he does work so hard on his ranch. What I gave him," she warbles in that $1,000,000 voice, which has set the world cheering about everything she touches, "is a fine little son, George Washington, who was born under the stars and stripes, who is attending Culver Military academy to prepare him for Annapolis. I love them and they love me, and I hope I could be a mother again in this world."

Is a Boaster.

If Madam Schumann-Heink was a real estate dealer instead of a diva, and she would make a rattling good one, she would be known as a booster. A town builder and an empire maker. About San Diego she is an enthusiastic and in her friend, D. C. Collier. She is an enthusiastic and in her friend, D. C. Collier. She is an enthusiastic and in her friend, D. C. Collier.

Madam Schumann-Heink does not believe in women's suffrage. "A woman's place is in the home," she says, and proves it by producing pictures of herself doing a good, old fashioned Monday wash over a steaming tub. "If the real women stay at home and care for their families, there will be no need of votes for women, for after all the woman is the real boss."

"Can you turkey trot, Madam Schumann-Heink?"

"Ah, no. Not in public. But when I get alone with my sons and they grab me, then what I do is different."

The diva is 42. She says so herself without a trace of shame. The reason for this is that she does not look it. Her complexion is like a peach, brown with tint of red under the skin. Her hair is the soft gray that makes a man think of his mother, and her smile—it is a broad, good, old German smile. She is on her way back to Chicago, her city home, to begin a series of summer engagements at the Chautauquas. She loves to sing at the summer Chautauquas.

"I am the richest prima donna in the world," she said as the train left the station. "I have a fine family, I have all of the love of the world, and I live in the finest country in the world. What more could one mortal wish."

News Brevities

(Advertisement.)

Train Bulletin.

All afternoon and night trains are reported on time for Saturday.

For calling and receptions, ride in the $5000 limousine of Longwell's.

Have Your Electrical Work Done by the Texas Electrical Supply Co. 75 cents per hour. 35 percent saved on fixtures. 119 N. Stanton St. Phone 1130.

Dr. Garrett, stomach, intestines and internal diseases. 403 Roberts-Banner Bldg. painting and paperhanging.

For house wiring and fixtures, see the National Telegraph and Supply Company, 317 Mills street.

Dr. Morford moved to 318 Mills Bldg.

Card of Thanks.

We desire to express our heartfelt thanks to our many friends, also to Capt. A. H. Davidson and the soldiers of troop A, 12th cavalry, and the G. A. R. who so kindly assisted us during our recent bereavement in the death of our dear husband and father, W. F. Hempel.

Mrs. W. F. Hempel and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jerrell.

Dr. Wesson has moved his office to 312-313 Roberts-Banner Bldg. P. 1194.

Makes Jail Book New.

Jailer F. E. Clark has made the city jail look like new. Armed with a paint brush Friday he painted and varnished the inside of the building, and the doors were oiled and the steps leading to the corporation court room thoroughly cleaned and painted.

Dr. Jamieson, diseases of kidneys, bladder, rectum and skin; 618 Mills Bldg.

Dr. Cameron, dentist, 223 Mesa Ave.

Dr. Branch, Cranial, practice limited to diseases of children and obstetrics.

Prompt Transfer Service.

For prompt baggage, livery, hack and freight transfer, call Pomeroy's El Paso Transfer. Phone 2444.

Jung Ordered Deported.

Yes Hand Jung, a Chinaman, was ordered deported by the United States commissioner, G. B. Oliver, Saturday morning, being convicted on an alien charge.

Dr. A. T. Still Osteopathic Infirmary.

Dr. J. W. Collins, physician in chief. Dr. Doris Pearl Jones, lady specialist. Dr. Carl Gibson, 201 W. Missouri street. They cured others. They can cure you.

Dr. Hurley, 405 and 275. Diseases of children and nervous troubles.

Oregon Grocery, 505 N. Ore., phone 1721.

New York Judge Is Exonerated.

Albany, N. Y., July 12.—The same court justice Daniel F. Conklin was exonerated of the charges of misconduct preferred by the grand jury committee of the Bar Association of New York.

Emancipate autos—they move your trunks quickest. Phone 1. Longwell's.

Dr. Ratliff, dentist, 204 Ceples Bldg.

Dr. Nettle Satterlee, osteopath, 410 Mills Bldg., phone 141.

Seeks High Price For Cotton.

Dallas, Tex., July 12.—The problem of raising and holding 3,000,000 bales of cotton until it can be sold for 15 cents per pound, was the chief subject discussed at the session of the convention of southwestern cotton men here. About 1000 persons are in attendance.

Wallpaper and paperhanging; lowest prices. A. Golding, 119 South Stanton.

Dr. Ebert, dentist, 216-218 Mills Bldg.

Consumption is instantly checked in its progress by my Method of Outward Breathing. Print data and consultation (even at your own home) absolutely free. I have surprising local testimonials as the power of my Method as a death-fighter. Alice Gertrude Corwin (Mrs. Geo. A.), 605 Mesa Ave. Phone 141. Office consultation by appointment only.

Dr. Paret, dentist, 601 Roberts-Banner.

ENDEAVORERS DISCUSS RURAL CHURCH PROBLEM

Los Angeles, Calif., July 12.—Among the subjects discussed today at the international convention of the Christian Endeavor society were the rural church problem, the Christian Endeavor institute, field work and the Young Women's Christian association. The problem of efficiency and expansion again was taken up.

NEICE GOV. HUNT JOINS MUSICAL COMEDY COMPANY

Phoenix, Ariz., July 12.—Governor G. W. P. Hunt's niece, Beatrice Summers, whom he had not seen for 20 years, has arrived to join a musical comedy company which is playing at a local theater. She is a daughter of the governor's brother. Her appearance before the footlights brought a record breaking crowd.

SECRETARY OF THE NAVY STARTS FOR PACIFIC COAST

Washington, D. C., July 12.—Secretary Daniels left today for three weeks' inspection of Pacific coast navy yards and stations.

LIVE WIRE KILLS MAN.

Walker, Ariz., July 12.—O. Henderson is dead as the result of coming into contact with a wire of the Arizona Power company. He was badly burned before he could be torn away from the wire. Death followed about 10 hours later.

United States Spends $157,800,000 Annually Supporting Fly Population

To Say Nothing of the Cost of Human Life From the Fly, This Much Cash Is Spent—How Best to Eradicate the Evil From the Country—Keep Premises Cleaned.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 12.—Figured out in money, to say nothing of the loss in human life, the cost to the United States annually of supporting its fly population amounts to $157,800,000, according to government experts who have been making a study of the results of the germ-spreading activities of the insects.

It is estimated that the fly is responsible for an expenditure of $50,000,000 for the handling of tuberculosis cases, attributable to germs spread by the pests, while $70,000,000 represents the costs of typhoid fever cases, originating in the same way. As a carrier of intestinal fever and summer complaints and a transmitting agency of dysentery the fly, scientists say, must be charged with an expenditure of $37,200,000 for the case of these diseases.

Methods of fighting the fly which have been followed in the national capital this summer are indorsed in a bulletin just issued from the office of the state entomologist of Minnesota.

"In the early spring clean up all refuse heaps, filth of all kinds, manure piles, garbage heaps, old cans, trash of every sort and abolish as far as possible other places where flies may breed," states the bulletin. "Screens should be used freely on all doors and windows. The prompt disposal of garbage should be arranged for, and swill barrels and garbage cans should be tightly closed. Use some form of fly trap with the proper bait, and continuously; place it where it will do the most good."

Other precautions suggested are the following:

"Do not build a stable near dwelling house; arrange for prompt removal of stable manure from your vicinity; keep manure covered and in dark until removed. Keep your premises clean, as free as possible from filth of all kinds, slop water, garbage, refuse heaps. If your neighbor allows such nuisances upon his own premises, complain of him to your board of health."

"A safe and effective poison is made by adding three teaspoonsful of formalin to a pint of milk and half water. This is particularly useful where flies do not have access to other sources of moisture. It should be kept out of the reach of children, and might be placed in a Mason fruit jar inverted in a shallow dish, and so arranged as to feed the liquid into the dish as fast as needed. Or it might be poured into an open dish and placed near the sink or wherever flies gather. Other sources of moisture should be kept away from them."

TURKS THREATEN BULGARIAN TROOPS

Constantinople, Turkey, July 12.—Negotiations between Turkey and Bulgaria regarding the future between the nations have failed.

The government sent a note to the commander of the Bulgarian troops last night demanding evacuation forthwith of all territory south of the line running from Ruse on the Aegean sea to Midia on the Black sea. Otherwise they would be driven out by the Turks.

Gen. Tazet Pasha, commander in chief of the Turkish army has left for the front.

The landing of Greek troops near the port of Dedeağatch on the Aegean sea causes the Turkish government anxiety.

BULGARIANS PROTEST TO PRESIDENT WILSON

Washington, D. C., July 12.—A petition from prominent Bulgarians to President Wilson protesting against alleged violations of the rules of warfare by the Greek forces at Saloniki will not elicit a reply from the state department because of its unofficial character.

TO CHANGE DEPOT SITE.

Phoenix, Ariz., July 12.—The United Verde and Pacific railroad is to change the location of its depot to a new site in the vicinity of the old roasting beds and about 200 feet below the elevation now occupied. A new wagon road will pass in front of the hospital to the new depot.

ARIZONA PIONEER DIES.

Phoenix, Ariz., July 12.—Sam Bayley, pioneer of Arizona, is dead. His was a charter membership of the Elks lodge of this city and took a great part in the construction of the Roosevelt dam. Recently he was employed as a night watchman at the property of the Swans mining company.

PHOENIX CLERKS ORGANIZE.

Phoenix, Ariz., July 12.—Fifty clerks have formed the Retail Clerks Mutual Benefit association. Five dollars a week sick benefits will be paid and $50 death benefits.

FAVERSHAM GIVES NEW INTERPRETATION OF ANTHONY

William Faversham, who will bring his spectacular production of "Julius Caesar" to this city next fall, is the first Shakespearean player of distinction in this country in recent years who has dared to defy some of the hoary traditions in presenting the plays of the immortal poet.

In beginning his career as a Shakespearean producer with "Julius Caesar," Mr. Faversham decided that he would not do one single thing just because tradition said it must be done. He determined that he would consider all the traditions and see if they were reasonable. If they proved to fit into his interpretation of the play, all well and good, but if they did not, out they were to go regardless of the antiquity of the sources from which they were derived.

The result, according to those who have seen the play in the east, is a surprisingly fresh Shakespearean production in which new thoughts and new ideas have a place side by side with what is best in tradition. Mr. Faversham's conception of the character of Anthony is said to be essentially different from any previous conception ever shown in this country. In the earlier scenes the note of tophishness is strongly accentuated, perhaps more strongly than in any recent interpretation of the part, for after all, Anthony was essentially a Roman egotist before he became a man of action. A quality of youthful ardor is said to permeate the entire play and the classic address over Caesar's body is delivered, not as an orotund oration, but as a coldly calculated piece of calculation, a definite means to an end. It is said that portions of the oration are delivered in a vein of almost intimate conversational speech and yet there are times when Mr. Faversham's voice soars to supreme heights.

GOUX LOSES AUTO RACE IN FRANCE

Longueau, France, July 12.—George S. Bullot, the French automobilist, today won the grand prize of the Automobile club of France over the Piaré 25 lap circuit of approximately 570 miles, in 7 hours, 53 minutes, 54.4 seconds.

Julius Goux, the Frenchman who won the recent 500 mile race at Indianapolis, was second in 7 hours, 56 minutes, 22 seconds.

A tire of the machine driven by the Englishman, A. Lee Guinness, burst while passing over a bridge. The car skidded and killed a spectator. The driver was not hurt.

THE COURTS.

COUNTY COURT.

A. S. J. Elyar, Presiding.

F. W. Booker vs. M. E. Ker, suit for $355.00.

F. W. Booker vs. M. E. Ker, distress proceedings for rent amounting to $385; H. L. Stewart and Southwestern Industrial company, intervenors; on trial.

JUSTICE COURTS.

E. B. McClintock, Presiding.

J. J. Stevenson and M. L. Reese, charged with theft over $50; held to grand jury in sum of $200 each.

Dominga Delgado, charged with assault; complaint filed.

J. J. Murphy, Presiding.

John Zawadzki, charged with assault to murder; complaint filed.

Whose Business Is It?

Circulation talk is a tender subject to the publisher whose subscribers are few.

Guaranteed circulation is a feature of every Herald contract.

Cross May Battle With Ritchie

Lesch Cross, the New York light weight, whose victory over Ted Anderson, the sensational butler, of Vance over, places him in a position to demand a fight from champion Willie Ritchie.